It Seems Like FOREVER...

Opening the door to the school, you realize that you are about to spend the next four years here. The last time you were here was probably the eighth grade orientation tour. Struggling to fit in and not look so much like a freshman, you try to locate your homeroom. Before you know it, your homeroom teacher takes attendance and hands out the completed schedules. Then, everyone is hustled off down the narrow hallway into the foyer and rushed into the Little Theater, where we meet someone who will be important to us over the next four years. Who is this person? He is your housemaster—either Mr. Clancy or Mr. Kamataris. Through the next four years he will help you solve your problems. Then Mr. Morley, our principal, welcomes us to our high school years. Upon receiving your Student Handbook, reality hits you—it's your first day of school. After we lose our lost looks, we manage to fit in, but no matter how hard we try to look like sophomores, we're still freshmen.

Coming back sophomore year, with more experience and knowledge, we recognize the halls. Through the lingering summer haze our familiar school pattern seems fuzzy. We try to readjust to the early mornings. Sophomore year is a time for PSATs, class rings, the semi-formal, and Health class—you should never forget these moments! Remember Driver's Ed?

"The first day of school was great and now that I'm a sophomore, I am glad I'm not a freshman."

—Autumn Ciummei, sophomore

Cheering with full force! Junior Pam Milliken and sophomore Cory Mulvey bring some spirit to the crowd during our Homecoming rally.

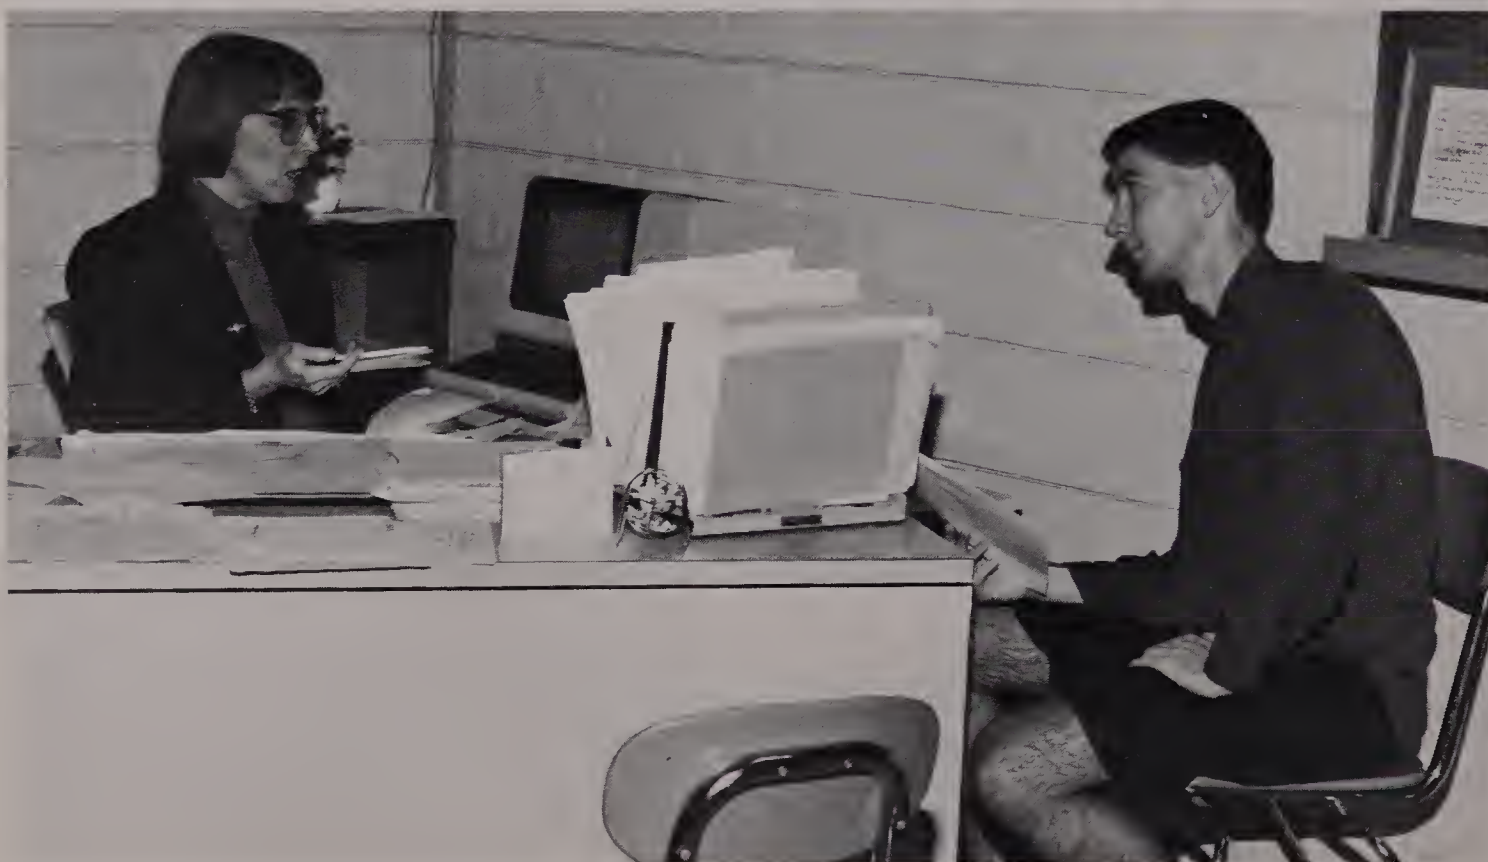

One, one thousand, two, one thousand... Learning CPR during G period health class, sophomore Joe Bucciarelli practices compression on everyone's favorite dummy, Annie.

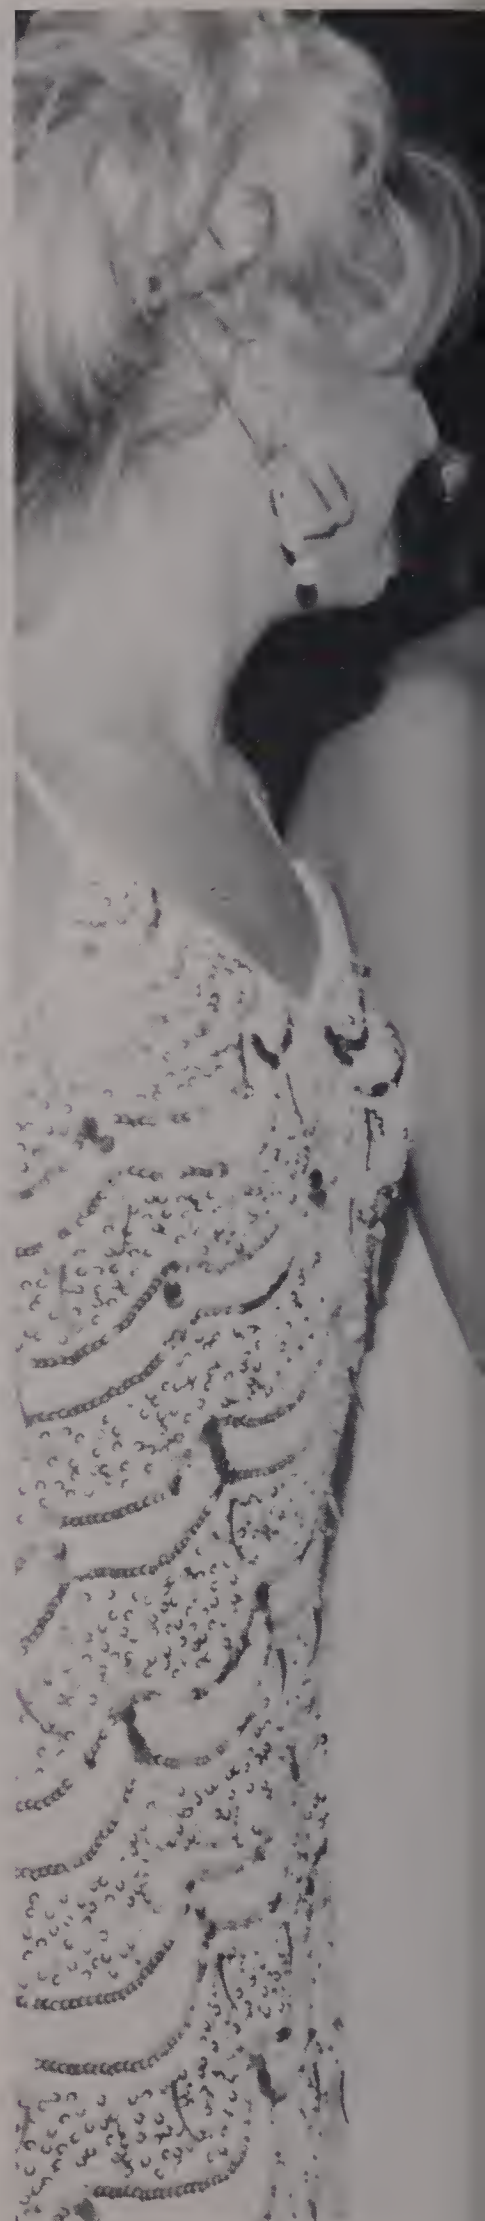

Surprise! During lunch, senior Matt Lefevre sneaks up on sophomore Heather Moisan and his sister, freshman Janice Lefevre. Brothers and sisters often make financial requests from each other—yes, there's an advantage of having a sibling in the school!

What play will we use? Senior field hockey players Becky Honer, Tricia Dunn, Jenn Tucker and Tracey Skulley take a few moments after practice to talk with their coach, Dede Bryant and their mascot.

Time is important senior year. Discussing dates for college applications, senior Jim Sullivan spends some time out of senior study with his counselor, Mrs. Dolmanisth. Applying to schools takes time and needs to be done by January.

Bubble Day, SATs, Junior Prom, and getting your license are all part of junior year. We start thinking seriously about going to college, and check out our options at college fairs. We keep busy by taking on after school jobs and attempting to balance clubs, sports and other cocurricular activities. Junior year—we're finally upperclassmen and we begin to feel that we're really viable people here.

After junior year flies by, we start our senior year. It is a confusing period, when we try to figure out what we want to do for the rest of our lives by choosing colleges, signing up for the armed forces, or deciding to work full-time. We all go through the stress necessary to make this decision—applications, deadlines, interviews, and fees—all choices that will determine our futures!

Yes, it's senior year, the year we've waited for since kindergarten. We finally get to do a skit at a rally. It's our homecoming, our prom and all-nighter, and our graduation! We become better friends as we realize it is our last year together. Coming to an end is our time together in high school.

“Junior year is so groovy. I can't wait to go to the junior prom in May.”

—Tara McNamara, junior

“Senior year has been the best year of my life.”

—Wendy Gustafson, senior

Who's dancing? Seniors Marci Tyldesley, Kate DiRienzo, Kim Enright and James Sullivan take some time away from dancing at their Junior Prom to see what's happening on the dance floor.

Practice, practice, practice! Warming up his fingers, senior A.J. Reitz practices before getting on the bus to play at the Leominster football game.

Just Hangin'...Waiting for the bell to ring, seniors Becky Tripp and Moe Cappadona spend a few moments talking and "hangin' the rail".

Time to plan! Doing a little brainstorming, seniors Missy Deldon, Kate DiRienzo, Rick Milliken, and Jess Mahoney try to think of a theme for the senior semi-sormal during a planning meeting.

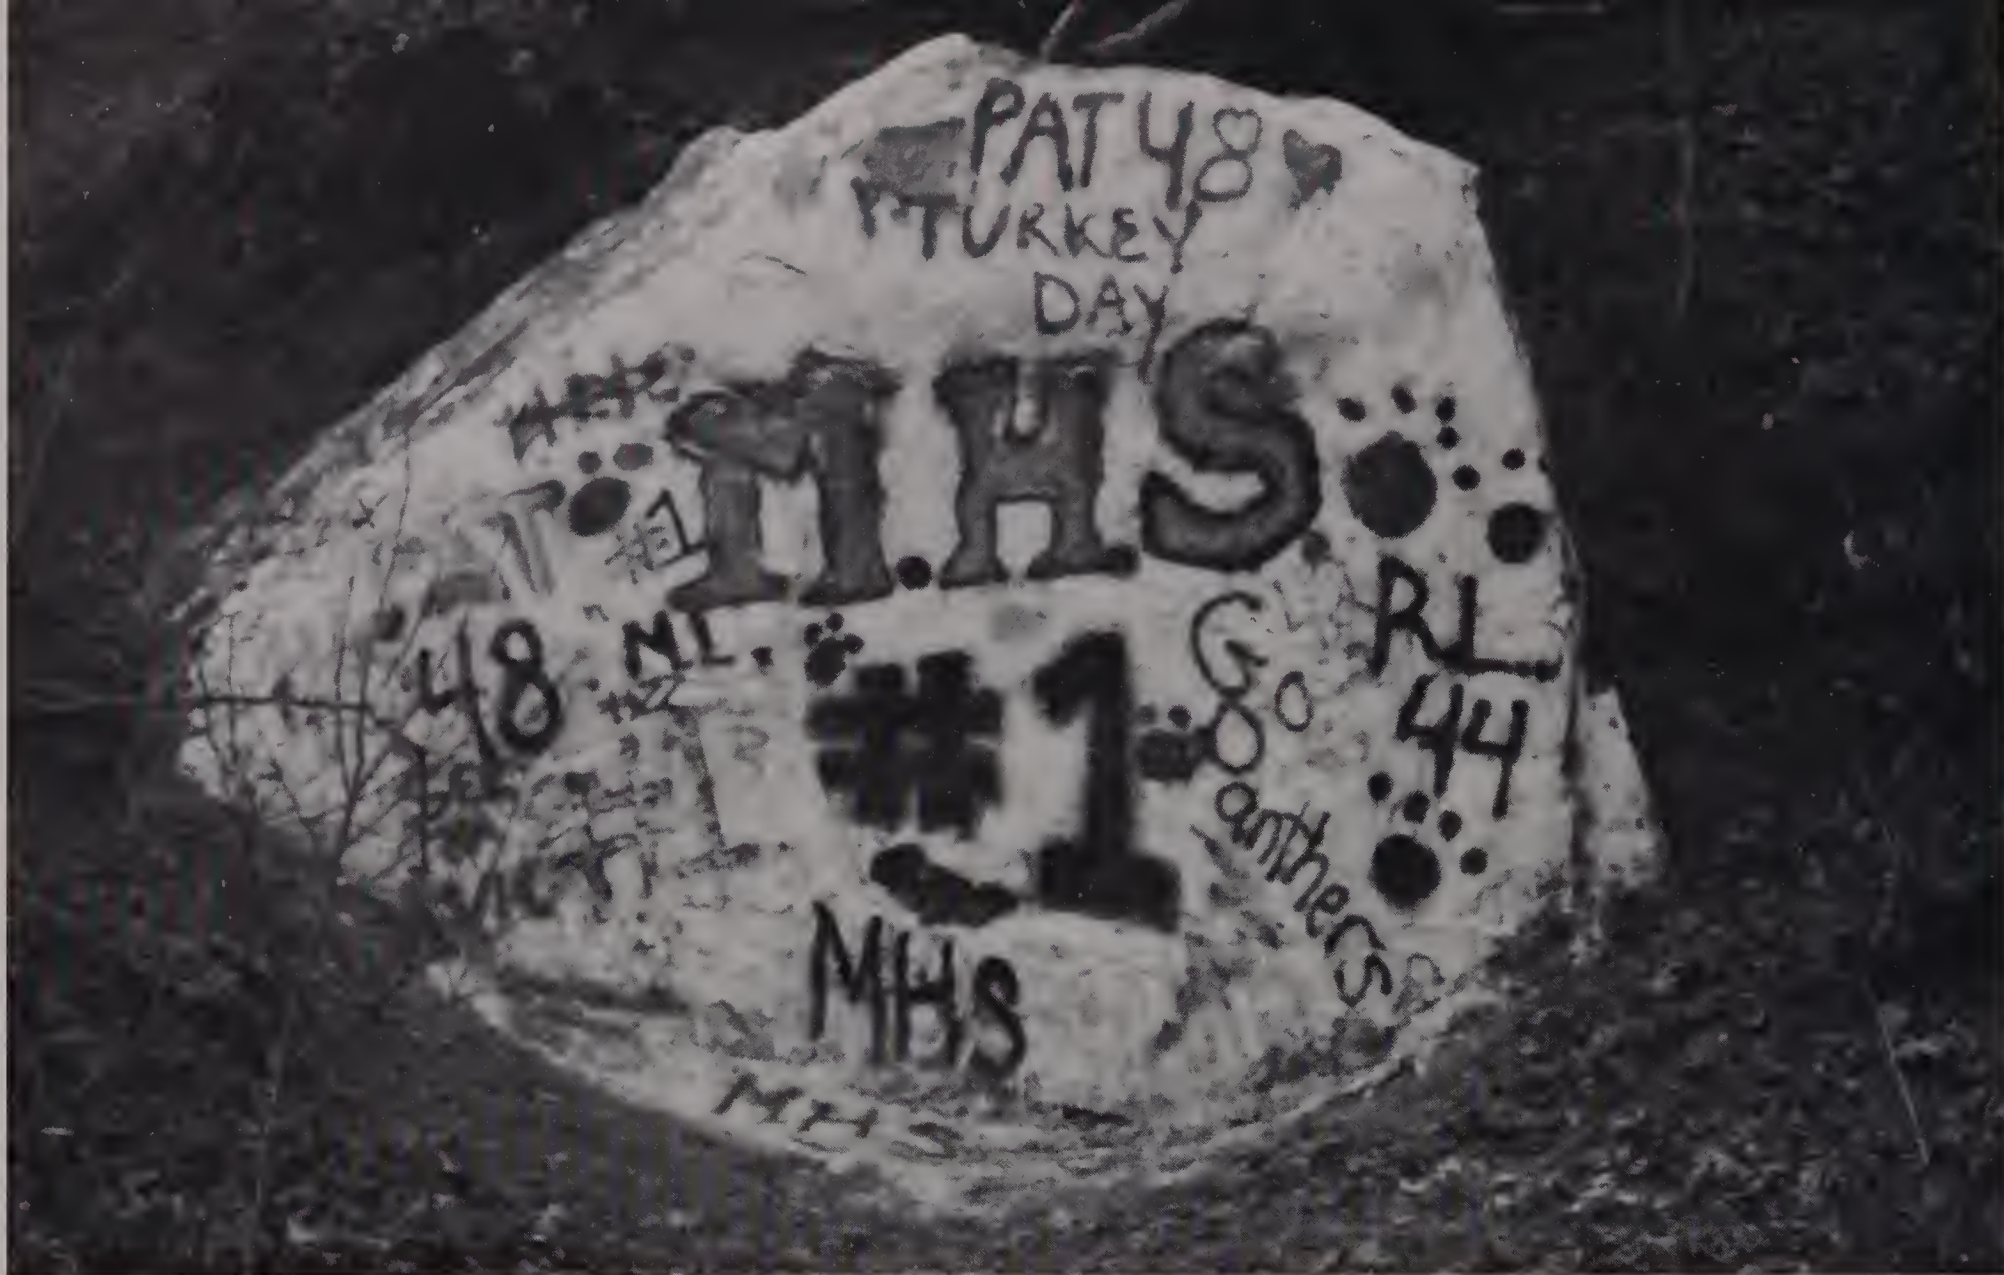

TIME Together

"I am involved in many activities, such as Show Choir, Band, Jazz Ensemble, and Drama—and I love 'em all. I would like to continue them in college."

Michael Cicerone, senior

Rushing off to work right after school, staying after for that all important meeting—these are the other activities that we devote time to during our twenty- four hour days. We might be shopping at the mall for a prom dress, buying that incredible car, sending packages to Marlboro natives serving in the Persian Gulf, or even developing an acting career in our Drama Club. Whatever we do, we know that these after school excursions and events can play important roles in our futures.

On her way! Sometimes there's just enough time between classes, sometimes there's just NOT enough time...Doing the center stairs on her way to her next class senior Holly Mederios keeps moving with the crowd.

A Little Paint...

To kick off another victorious season the girls' soccer team has a feast at the Fortune Garden Chinese Restaurant. From there the night of adventure begins. Sneakily they gather up the necessary equipment—spray paints—as they set out to cover the 290 bridge in orange and black. It is the team's way to express their spirit and pride in being athletes at MHS. Sophomore varsity soccer player Carole Dutchka says, "The bridge intimidates the enemy." This is an important tradition that helps prepare this incredible team for their tough season ahead.

—Cammy Hickey and Carrie Pacific

Orange Crush! To get psyched up for the season, traditionally the girls' soccer team paints the route 495 underpass, "for the love of it."

Every little bit counts...Senior cheerleader Nicole Duplessis is sure to cover every little spot on the rocks.

Signs for our Times

Did you know that kids didn't always paint on the Route 85 "Rock"? As Mr. Clancy tells it, "...that area was gutted out some time in the late fifties. My father used to tell me how a band of Gypsies camped there every summer. It used to be called Gypsy curve."

When did the traditional "rock painting" start? Other local historians (our parents) can remember rock painting on Thanksgiving, 1960. If our sources are correct, it started between the late fifties and the early sixties. An '86 graduate told us, "When I painted it, all you could feel were layers of paint. It was like touching a sponge."

Throughout the years, "The Rock" has become a community bulletin board, giving anyone with paint a chance to express themselves. Between Marlborough and Hudson, a variety of messages have been written on the massive rock. From birthday wishes, to good-byes, to the MHS favorite—Go Marlborough! With this year's presidential campaign, it even became a political sign.

"The Rock" is a part of our tradition. As long as it stands, the residents of Hudson and Marlborough will write on it!

—Erin Belmore

This one's for you...Senior Rick Lacina and juniors Trey Stewart, Joe Peltak and Jason Gould paint the rock in memory of their buddy, Pat MacNeil.

Ready, set, paint! Handing out spray paint cans to junior cheerleader Krissy Campbell, sophomore cheerleader Melissa Lacina makes sure not to get any paint on herself.

Coming Home

The excitement builds, the crowd goes wild....TOUCHDOWN! Panther fans cheer as MHS defeats Wachusett with a twenty-eight point lead. All the hard work during practices has obviously paid off. Spirit, that's what Homecoming is all about.

Starting weeks in advance, the senior class gathered together to prepare for the upcoming festivities. Deciding on the senior skit, and planning the traditional Toga Dance kept them busy. Spirit Week started off the fun with an all new day, Gender Bender day. Then the traditional Twins, Mismatch, Black and Orange days psyched us all up for Friday's rally.

Kicking off the excitement, were speeches from team captains, cheers, and the band playing good ole "Victory." Finally, the seniors shot up our spirits with the closing senior skit, "Friday Night Live at MHS." We left the building geared up for the "Big Game" against Wachusett. Even though the fog may have made it tough to see, we were victorious, 34-6.

Saturday night everyone celebrated our big football victory at the Toga Dance. There were a lot of smiles as the homecoming court danced away, ending homecoming for another year!

—Erin Belmore and Patti McClard

Party on dude! Psyching up the crowd, Wayne and Garth, alias seniors Matthew Lefevre and Dave Gamache, announce the top five babes of MHS. Schwing!

Here they come... As a reward for their dedication to the class of 1993, seniors Christine Arruda, Adam Bakr, Marci Tyldesley, Richard Milliken, Queen Sarah Sturges and King Jim Sullivan, Kim van Lingen, Scott Reiland, Jenn Clancy, and Matt Lefevre are all smiles when they take their places on the Homecoming Bridge.

Sleeping on the job? Not to worry! As the Panthers work their way to a twenty-eight point lead, senior Rick Lacina gets to take a break from the excitement of the "Big Game."

Instruments up! 'Direct' your attention to senior Erica McCabe as she leads the band in playing "Victory" after the Panthers score the winning touchdown of the Homecoming Game.

“Solpa and I had a really Greek time!!”
—Amari Parker, sophomore

“Seeing all the graduates at the game impressed me. It showed a lot of spirit”
—Julie Tremmel, sophomore

“It felt good to know all of my hard work had been paid off.”
—Jen Clancy, senior and member of this year's homecoming court

“I thought hall decorating was its best in four years!”
—Jillian Byun, senior

Is that freedom Rock Man? No, it's just the senior class groovin' to the Beatles' tune, "All We Need is Love," at the rally. Well turn it up, man!

Work or school? ...finding time for both

To many of us, money is much more important than school work, so finding the time for a job in our hectic schedules is not as hard as it may seem. Having an after school job can sometimes take time away from what we should otherwise be doing, i.e. homework. To remedy this problem, many of us, like senior Sarah Sturges at the Wayside Racquet Club and junior Kathy Kiley at the I.C. Rectory, find time to do our homework, while at the same time doing our job. "This job is really easy, and I even get to do my homework while I am getting paid," says Sarah. However, many students, like senior Rachel Partington, are not permitted to do homework but really don't care because the monetary rewards are so great that it is worth having to stay up late after work to finish homework. "On days when I work,

I can't start my homework until pretty late," says Rachel, "and I finish even later. But I don't really care because I need the money so much." Money is desperately needed to pay for cars, gas, and of course for the week end. Working a job and trying to be a student can be a real challenge, and often schoolwork is neglected. Yet the desire and need for money often displaces the worry about not having homework done. Of course, not doing homework for a long time can also have serious connotations—you could fail the test, flunk the course, and qualify for summer school! But most of us don't really worry about this because money seems more important than homework, whether it is or not.

Time to Perform

Our music programs have flourished incredibly this year! More and more students are experimenting in the music fields, whether it be singing and dancing or playing an instrument.

Our performance groups hold two concerts—December 17 is our holiday show and May 1 is our annual Pops concert. The singing, dancing and antics of the Show Choir always leave the crowd in stitches! The chorus and band perform contemporary pieces with beautiful melodic arrangements, while the jazz band really kicks out some mean charts. Two new groups perform, too—the A Cappella chorus (with those singers who possess perfect pitch and harmonizing voices) and the string ensemble (for those who appreciate the classical side of music.)

In the spring, the Music Association is sending us to Williamsburg, VA, for a festival where we will compete with groups from across the states. The concert band, jazz band, and show choir will all perform in concerts or competitions this spring.

Congratulations are also in order for those individuals who tried out and were selected for the Central District groups. Seniors Dustin Archie, Dana Dallis, and Heather Kurbs, freshman Nicole Halper and sophomore Amari Parker qualified for chorus. Junior Eric George and senior A.J. Reitz made districts for band, and junior Leah Okimoto is our orchestral rep. Great job, guys!

Go out and get involved in music and may it live in our hearts forever!

—A.J. Reitz

Ho, ho, ho! Decked out in holiday splendor, the jazz band directed by Mr. Piazza swings everyone into the holiday spirit at the annual concert.

A shining moment! Using only candles to light their way, the A Cappella choir makes a dramatic entrance into the auditorium harmonizing "Hodie Christus Natus Est."

Singing as one. Combined members of A Cappella, Chorus and Show Choir—Erin Belmore, Holly Conrad, Mark Harrahy, Amari Parker, Laura Baker and Nikki Goldstein—sing "She's Like a Swallow."

Plucking away... Giving it all they've got, the newly formed orchestra plays "Silver Bells" for the concert.

"It's makes me nervous at first, to perform in front of everyone, but afterwards it feels good."

—Christine White, junior

Spare Time

Are you bored and lonely? Can't think of what to do? No problem! Everyone does something a little different. Some kids are into sports of the season or clubs, while others have after school jobs and some of us just like to kick back and relax, or just join our friends at the local hangouts after a long, hard day at school. Sophomore Bonnie McDonald says, "Everyday after school I have soccer practice until 5:00 PM and then I go home and sleep."

Not sure where to go? Try the mall—a great place to be with your friends. A lot of us spend hours there shopping, talking to people (both friends and strangers), and most of all—looking for the opposite sex! "The main reason I go to the malls is to be with my friends and to check out the guys," says sophomore Nicole Campbell.

Try the movies! Do you ever wonder what you're going to do on a Friday or Saturday night? Well, the movies seem to be a good idea! Now this is where everyone is at—whether you go in a clique, a date, or even alone. The real question is which movie to see. Something funny, something to make you cry, or something very serious?

Hungry? Take a ride to Framingham's famous Ground Round where they have the best wings! You'll be sure to catch up with your friends there! So you can see, there are a variety of things that kids can do after school—whether it's working, playing, or just hanging out, everyone has something to keep them busy.

—Meredith Trolla, Jaimee Snediker, Heather Moisan, Brian Berry

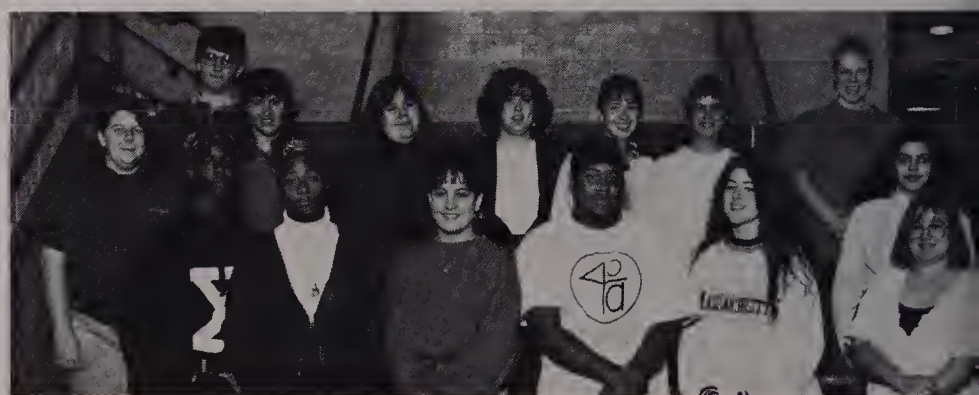

What to see? Seeking a movie to go to over the weekend, senior Robin Mooers, sophomore Russell Roberto, freshman Adam Roth, senior Beverly Bigham, juniors Doug Powell and Greg Turchan sit and talk about which movie they would like to see first.

Check it out! Looking at the clothes they bought from the mall, junior Jaimee Snediker, and senior Meredith Trolla are deciding which one of their outfits they are going to wear.

Arff! Arff! Chuckles, the wonder beagle, a.k.a. senior Erin Belmore, shows us her pout in Drama Club's production of Asylum.

Five minutes to curtain! Quickly getting ready for the Dinner Theater, freshman Sally Reid applies makeup to freshman Jennifer Luftig backstage.

I don't know my lines... Trying to memorize their lines, freshmen Jessica Hamilton and Lisa Sussman help each other in the Little Theater during rehearsal.

Time to Open the curtain!

"Romeo, oh Romeo, where for art thou, Romeo?" This isn't quite what you hear at our drama productions. Most of our productions are filled with stress, high anxiety and very late nights. Most of us in the Drama Club know that there is more to it than just putting on a show.

First of all there are auditions. These are nerve-wracking in themselves. They are usually two nights during which you read part of the script, sing in small groups, and dance a short number. This is your only chance to show what you can do on stage, and it is a bit scary. To some of us it is extremely frightening.

Then if you're lucky enough to make it into the show, the rehearsals begin. Rehearsals are a lot of work, but they can also be a lot of fun. Our spring musical is the production that takes the most rehearsals. These are the killers—they last from February until the production in March. And if you make it that far, good luck making it through tech week. Tech week is the week of the show. There is usually rehearsal every day and the times vary. You can be there for only a few hours, or some nights you can be there until 11:00 PM. It all depends on how far the show has progressed. Finally the date of the performance sneaks up on you. All of a sudden it is time to pull together all the hard work and late nights. It finally pays off when the curtain opens. You want to make it a night to remember, not only for your audience, but for the entire cast as well.

With Time There are Changes!

Do you remember your freshman year? From freshmen to seniors we change, not only our looks but our personalities. Some of us grow a little more mature. We take on a lot more responsibility for our grades and actions.

Freshman year--do you remember carrying all your books to every class and only going to your locker twice the whole day (at the beginning and at end of the day?) Better yet, do you remember at the middle school when we were only allowed to go to our lockers three times a day? No more!

Can you remember a few top 40 songs from 4 years ago? What was the fad? Senior Corey Headberg responds, "Four years ago? The song by SNAP 'I've Got the Power' and definitely, Champion sweatshirts!" And what about now? Baseball hats are still here...shorts are being worn year round. Heads are shaved to show team spirit or just to be cool. And guys wear their shorts hanging low--"saggin'".

As time goes by, and times change, the whole world changes, too. After all, the Berlin Wall fell and Russia is no more! And gone is President Bush. Music, fashion, technology, and even literature, change. But don't worry, one hundred years from now it will all be in the history books (like Woodstock).

Bottomless Pits

...our purses

Have you ever watched a girl go through her purse? Actually, it is quite amusing. The contents range from car keys to left over notes from a week ago. Almost always, there is a make-up compact with a mirror stuffed somewhere in there among everything else. Also, there might be homework notebooks, pictures, and the occasional necessities. Looking through a few purses, we found papers of all sort including the daily gum wrappers and a few ancient movie tickets.

The sizes of a purse range from the tiniest that can barely fit a small wallet, to the biggest that can fit everything but the kitchen sink in them. Many times, there are so many objects crammed into a purse, that you can hardly snap or zipper it. It is hard to believe that a person could stuff so many things into such a small area, but they do it.

Taking a look around school you can see for yourself all the different types of purses that are carried by people. Sometime, stop and look at the inside of some of them. You never know what you'll find!

—Holly Conrad and Matt Ready

"I've had the same purse since 8th grade.
My life is in there."

—Robyn Mooers, senior

Will she ever find it? Looking on as their friend senior Christina Agoritsas digs through her purse, senior Kim Chase and sophomore Kaitlin MacNeil wonder if she really has what she says in there.

Where is it? Looking for something they must all need for their next class—a stick of gum, a pen, a pass?—sophomores Sara Williams, Heather Duca, Dawn Kenison and Laura Brodeur wildly search their purses.

Where is it? Looking for his physics homework, senior Joe Toohey searches through his bookbag. You never know what has shuffled to the bottom of these "cumbersome satchels."

Cumbersome Satchels

Bags. They are everywhere during the first few weeks of September. Soon the sophmores and upperclassmen realize the awkwardness of their bookbags, and usually just carry their books. "It is a lot easier to carry around a few books and stop at your locker once and a while rather than carrying around a burdensome load," comments junior Jeff Stupik. On the other hand some feel that it is quite easier to carry all your daily belongings in one load. "I feel that in the feverous pitch of the school day that it is a heck of a lot easier to use a large bag," blurts freshman Scott Medeiros.

The contents of the bags usually range in variety. From the common pen and pencil to dirty gym socks, miscellaneous items fill the bags. Some bags are filled to the top with large literature and biology books. Other bags are stuffed with old History of Civ tests and destroyed Algebra notebooks. Even though they are excessively large in the crowded hallways and are extremely heavy they do make it a lot easier to carry around the needed "junk" to get through the school day.

—James S. Sullivan

Cram Time

...exams

Oh, no! It's that time of year again! Too much to do...too little time to do it all! It's time for exams—those all-inclusive tests that make us wrack our brains for a day or two. Staying up late the night before the test to review something that easily could have been looked over for a few minutes over a period of days, saving you a lot of trouble that last night. However, this is not the way most students work. Even though it is a hassle, we just cram an entire half-year of work into a single night, which is a lot of info to squash into your melon, and a good deal of what goes in doesn't stay in.

There is also the problem of often having two exams on the same day. "It's especially tough when you have two exams in two major classes on one day," says senior Rob Harvie, "and you don't know which one to study for." Sometimes this is such a difficult decision that you don't study for either one enough, and this can lead to two bad grades, especially if you have exams in classes that have been hard all year. Still, as long as you study somewhat to refresh your memory, you shouldn't do too badly.

Since much of what will be on the test was taught at the beginning of the year, a lot may have been long since forgotten, and your memory may need a little jarring. Sometimes just rereading your notes from earlier in the year or reading the book will do the trick, but in other cases extensive work may be necessary, such as doing sample math problems from sections that you may not remember how to do. Many times just a quick glance at the old material is sufficient, but it doesn't always work. If you have been doing well in a class all year, your studying job will probably be easier than if you were having trouble in a course.

—Jeff Ryan

Cram Time ...tiny lockers

Are lockers that big of a deal in this school? Yes, if it weren't for lockers we would have no place to keep our smelly gym clothes, pens, and books. Doesn't it seem every year we have less and less elbow room for our school necessities? Inside the lockers it's a horror show. It's true! Up top there's barely room for more than five books and down below you have trouble fitting in a winter jacket.

Do you ever wonder how your locker neighbor is able to cram every bit of junk into the locker? That is where the theory of "THE LOCKER PACK RAT" comes into order. They fit everything from old dirty gym socks to pictures of their freshman year. Hopefully, for the next generation of high school students, the lockers will miraculously grow!!

What did I do with it this time? Attempting to make it on time to his next class, sophomore Brian Stupik struggles to find a pen or pencil to take an important quiz.

Read me! Senior Chris Shea displays his Panther spirit in an original way by using his body as a billboard at the homecoming rally.

Getting restless? Waiting for the rally to begin, sophomore Keith Biddy and freshman David Luce have a snack to pass the time.

Lean-a-lean-a-lean... Getting into the Panther spirit, seniors Marci Tyldesley and Christine Arruda stand up and cheer at the Thanksgiving rally.

You're under arrest! At the Thanksgiving rally, our mascot, senior Bucky Zilembo, handcuffs Hudson supporter, senior Dave Gamache, as he tries to get the crowd into the spirit.

Riled Up!

What do you think of when you hear the word "rally"? The football team, cheerleaders, and throwing paper airplanes? These are just a part of what goes on at our rallies. When you walk into the field house at the beginning of G period, the first thing you hear is the band playing that famous song, "Land of a Thousand Dances." Once you are in there and have found a seat with your friends, the "rallying" begins. The president of the senior class comes out and gets everyone riled up. Then the captains of all the teams wish the football team good luck. Then there is the infamous screaming of "BEAT 'EM BUST 'EM..."

As freshmen, you are usually not sure whether or not to participate in our unique activities, such as the cheer when we all stand up and "Lean'a Lean'a Lean." But by senior year, you know exactly what to do—whatever you want! Talking about her four years at the rallies, senior Lori Berardinelli says, "I didn't know what to do, I just followed everyone else. It got better as the years went on." Some people might just sit there and rather be spectators, while others go so far as coming out of the bleachers and trying to have everyone participate by jumping around.

Two of our biggest rallies are at Homecoming and Thanksgiving. At our Homecoming rally, our King and Queen are crowned along with their court. Then the seniors show us their talent as they put on the traditional "senior skit." And the cheerleaders show us that their hard work and hours of practice pay off as they dance and lead us in cheers.

Then there's the last rally of the year, the Thanksgiving Day rally. We all look forward to this rally to prove our support for the football team against our ancient rival—Hudson. The senior football players are recognized—it will be their last game for Marlborough High. And the cheerleaders and band are acknowledged for their support.

No matter what rally it is, all of us love to show our spirit and support. And as long as we have spirit, we will have rallies.

-Holly Conrad

Thank you! Senior football captains Rick Lacina, Scott Reiland and Matt Lefevre thank all the cheerleaders for supporting their team by presenting them with flowers at the Thanksgiving rally.

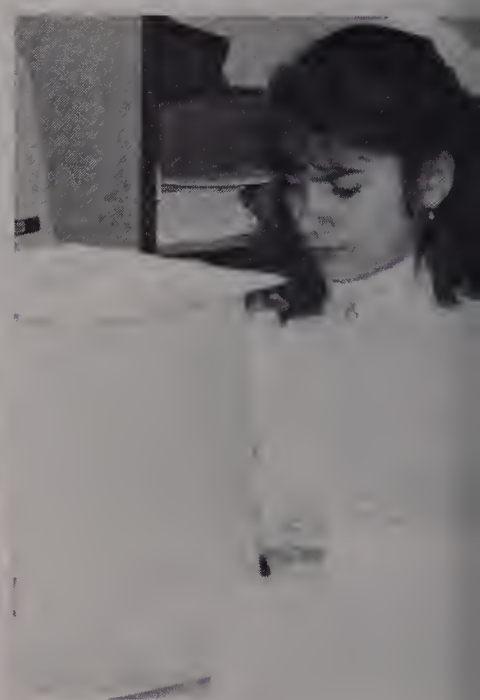

Senior Anxiety Attacks

Deadlines, applications to colleges, essays—what do they all add up to? STRESS! Or maybe you experience them as senior anxiety attacks. What are senior anxiety attacks? Worrying just about everything, and anything. It may be getting into the college of your choice, or just making sure you have your homework done for math class. People say senior year is supposed to be one of the best years of your life, but for most it really isn't. Even housemaster Mr. Kamataris says, "I was always dreading my SAT scores." Just being able to keep up your grades, meet deadlines for college applications, play sports, and work a job, can make you crazy. Think about it—if you're involved in athletics, you have practice everyday after school. Then you have to go home, eat dinner, and do your homework. Who knows when you'll get it all done. You don't really have time to talk to your friends and do the things that you'd rather be doing. This is the year that counts. You have all these things to worry about, and it gets harder and more confusing.

But you also have to remember to keep time for yourself, to enjoy your last year as a high school student. If you spend all your time doing work, you'll miss out on the year. Seniors have a lot of activities that go on such as the buddy breakfast, the semi-formal, the senior prom, and, of course, graduation. Not to mention that this is our last year together as a class, so we're remembering the little things that happened from day to day.

The next time you feel as though you're going to have a nervous breakdown, say to yourself, "I will get through this." And when you have walked across that stage and received your diploma in June, all the stress of the year will have vanished, and you'll be left with your wonderful memories and experiences of your high school career.

—Danielle Navarro

Heeeelp! Trying to finish his homework, senior Josh Lewis experiences an anxiety attack!

Wake me up before the bell rings! Senior Brian Benson takes a cat nap from the fast paced life of the high school senior.

You want it done by when? Helping out Mrs. Poirier in the guidance office, senior Erica DiLuzio types data sheets for the seniors. Data sheets are informational sheets—clubs, jobs, honors—that are included with college applications.

I heard... Seniors Carrie Pacific, Carrie Querino, Shannon Boyle, Lisa Benedetto and Jen Tucker enjoy eating lunch together and catching up on all the latest gossip. Believe it or not, college deadlines and applications are not always the topics of conversation!

Think! Sometimes getting the correct answer when you need it is tough. Senior Wendy Gustafson wracks her brain for that important answer on a stressful test.

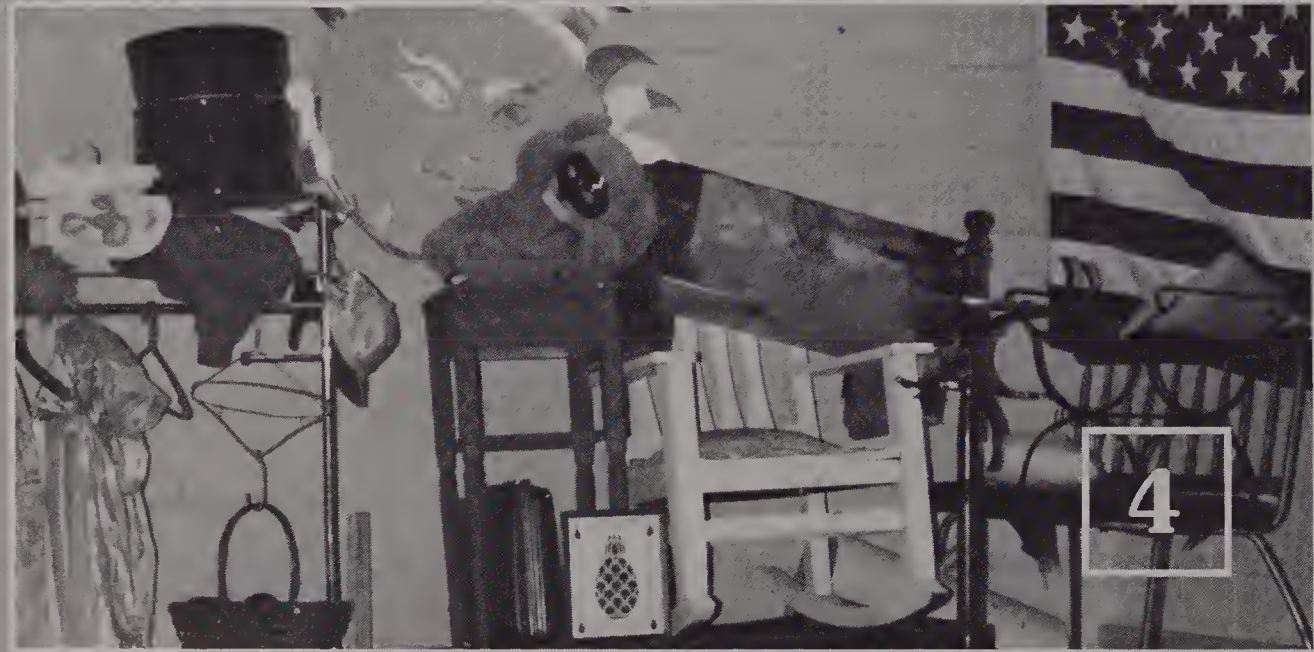

What's next? Senior Dave Shaw seems to be "zoning out" during study. Seniors often use their studies to talk with friends and relieve the tension from college planning.

The Search

To test your knowledge of MHS and to see how well you really know your school, we've devised this brief examination of some of the more remote locations and familiar sights in and around the building. Observe these photos closely to see if you can tell where their whereabouts—their particular place—is in the school environment.

—Jim S. Sullivan

This year it was.... Time to Help Out

An important part of our MHS experience is helping others—whether it be NHS students tutoring others, Fitness Club members organizing a holiday party for the elderly, or Business Professionals of America members sponsoring the annual clean-up of our school grounds.

These extra events that happen for our community—whether for we, the students, or our neighbors in the city of Marlborough—only occur because of the dedicated work of our clubs and their advisors. By sponsoring these events the members gain valuable leadership experience and make great friends.

Without them our days and nights would be less fun—there would be no dances, no rallies, and no dress-up days. We thank you—you help fill our days with fun!

Who is this person? Facing the deadline crunch during a Tuesday after school yearbook meeting, juniors Mike Ginnetti and Rob Maybaum work on captions for a story about the underclassmen study halls. Without the dedicated staff members where would this book be?

Just saying thanks! At a luncheon for our staff, BPA president Charlie Souza and senior members Lori Berardinelli and Sabrina Sequeira present cinnamon brooms to people who helped in the fall clean-up sponsored by BPA.

Step, step... Working on their production number for the ever famous Mr. MHS competition, members of AFS, senior Yung Wong, sophomore Shin-Yi Lai, and juniors Erin Tiffany, Lisa Belauskas, Becky Wilcox and Kristin Smith follow Mrs. Collins' lead.

Having a fun time?! Some came dressed for the night—Disco Dance! Seniors Kate Kelly, Christie Maiuri, Nicole Duplessis, Jill Benson, Becky Honer and Heather Ebert join the crowd on the dance floor—the foyer.

Living life... Senior Kristen Baduski gives blood with the support of senior friend Tina Mossey during the StuCo-sponsored blood drive for the Red Cross in January.

busy, busy BUSY!

There's always something brewing in room 152. What's 152? It's homeroom for about 50 of us—the people who are our Student Council.

From September to June these people always have something to do. From the freshman-senior buddy social to clothes drives for the less fortunate, from sponsoring a regional conference with over five-hundred students converging on us one morning to attending their state conference in Hyannis, from chocolate pudding wrestling to being ushers at graduation, it's a constant flurry of activity. And when the teachers were without a contract this year, student rep to the school committee, senior Adam Bakr rallied the students together to picket City Hall.

Thanks to you all and your advisor, Ms. Leavey—your efforts are appreciated.

What's this? Sitting very still, senior Dave Gamache gets a trim from senior Adam Bakr. When not serving as student rep to the School Committee, Adam loves to be a barber. Need a trim?

Let's get these booklets done! With over 500 kids expected, juniors Amy Gogan and Melissa O'Loughlin use spare time during a study to help get ready for the regional StuCo conference.

The Senior Semi-Formal...

Not Too Formal

Oh, what a night! The senior semi-formal was finally here. It was time to have some fun and make some memories. It started at 7:30 PM with enough pictures to make you go blind. After the formal portraits were taken, it was time to dance. We kicked off our shoes and danced and sang until we dropped. We danced to some of the oldies such as Van Morrison's "Brown Eyed Girl" and The Village People's "YMCA." There was the chicken dance and, of course, the Electric Slide. But when it was all over and all that was left was the last dance, there were memories to last a lifetime. At 11:00 pm the once noisy cafeteria was quiet and it was off to a late dinner.

—Christina Girvan and Erica McCabe

Do the chicken! Seniors Jim Sullivan and Amanda Young get ready to shake their feathers as they join the rest of their friends in the chicken dance.

Electric! Groovin' to the beat, sophomore Kate Ahern joins the rest of the crowd in doing the electric slide at the Freshman-Sophomore Semi-Formal.

Time to slow it down. Taking advantage of the few slow songs, freshmen Nicole Kattany and Keir Anzelmo take the floor.

Maybe we just don't like this song! Resting their feet, junior Erin O'Neil, senior Dave Letendre, Liz Edmonds, senior Mike Cicerone and senior Rob Harvie spend some time at their table.

Shake that body—By the middle of the night, seniors Rick Lacina and Jen Tucker let loose and danced at their semi-formal, The Senior Snow Ball.

A Valentine Cruise

What a cooperative effort! On Friday evening, February 5, the freshman and sophomore classes sponsored their semi-formal, "Valentine Cruise." Twirling across the dance floor to songs such as Arrested Development's "Mr. Wendel" and posing for formal photos took up the majority of the evening. There was even a buffet of sandwich foods and cookies to appease those who were hungry. As people left, they grabbed the red and white balloons that hadn't been popped or inhaled for squeaky voices.

Look at me! Showing off the new dance step they've just learned, seniors Katherine Kelly and Dave Gamache are taking the floor by storm.

Quick! Lunch always goes too quickly and it's really tough when junior Jill Thompson and sophomore Melissa Lacina try to check their fundraisers.

How much time do you spend? Freshman Holly Collins, junior Edenson James and freshman Wendy Linares spend time on the rail—a tradition!

Nice jackets, guys! Jeff Patruno, Rick Milliken and Josh Lewis sport clothes typical of the '60's for our Homecoming Rally.

This is our TIME

"Though it may be hard to make friends at first, once you have them they're friends for life."

Scott Reiland '93

The people here are a diverse group with many different opinions and responsibilities, whether we are students, administrators, or faculty. Everyone is part of the family and they strive to help each other learn. There are many things that are sought after from department head appointments to full academic scholarships for college. Our goal is to be the best in all that we do, because this our time to teach and to be taught. All that we have done here will never be forgotten.

Sharing their junk food... Seniors Tracey Skulley and Nicole Duplessis enjoy their lunch time together while studying for their next class. Using your time correctly becomes very important in high school.

Our Guardian Angels

You may see them watching you in the halls or from the 3rd floor railing. Well they don't have it out for us, it's just their job to keep us in line and govern our lives.

The executive branch of our school is made up of Mr. Morley, Mr. Clancy, and Mr. Kamataris make up our . They are sort of the school's president and vice-presidents. We know they do "administrative things". But what is an administrator's job really?

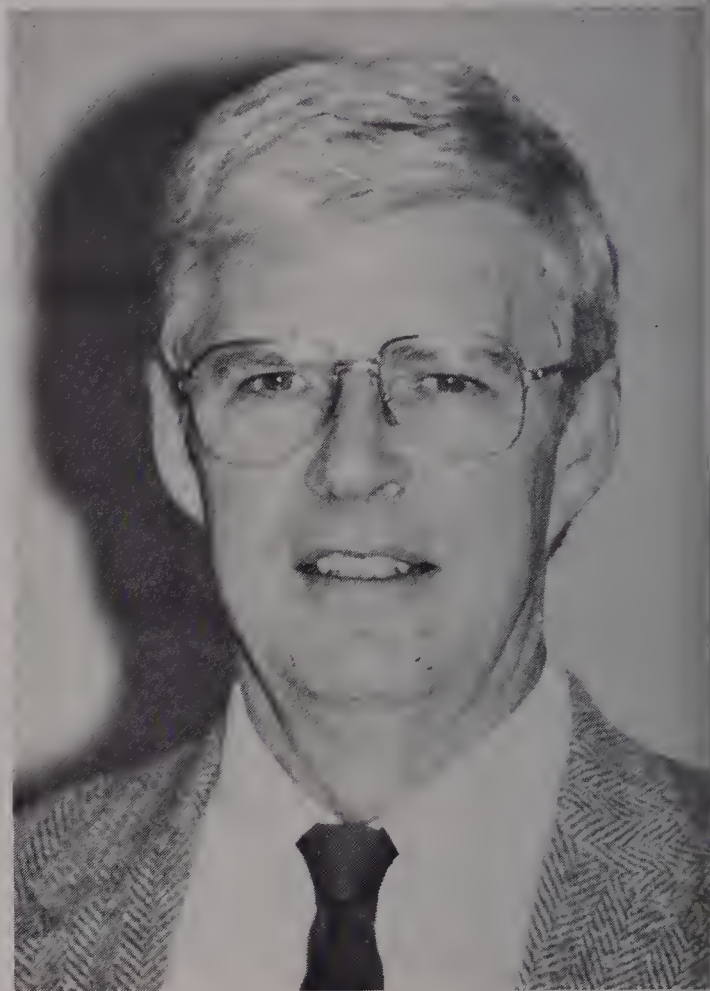

They don't just stand around all day watching over us. They make decisions that directly affect us . They O.K. all school functions and disciplinary actions. Almost every decision that is made, is made by these men. It's a lot of pressure but they always do it with a smile. They are our friends too, not just figure heads that we never see until we graduate.

If we have a problem they are there to talk to us. They lend a hand when we need it and give us advice too. We can depend on them and their ability to make the right decisions for us. They are more than administrators, they are people who care about us and our future.

—Erica McCabe

Lunch time! Principal Leonard Morley takes his post outside the cafeteria. Maybe later, he can get to eat his own meal!

Leaving so soon? After a long hard day, Housemaster Paul Kamataris still has time for a friendly wave to the crowd as he leaves the foyer on the way home.

What do you think? Housemaster Edward Clancy seems to be asking for some support in his choice of style for new lockers.

OVERTIME...

And Then Some

After a hectic day in school, all we want to do is go home and relax...but with our schedules, how can we? Almost all students have something to keep them occupied after school. However, it takes a special dedication to be a class officer, honor student, or club leader. These people spend a lot of time organizing activities, doing volunteer work, or just keeping their clubs in line. When asked about her dedication, senior Krithika Swamy said, "I am the treasurer for student council, it is a lot of hard work. I have to balance the books and be at every meeting."

Would these dedicated students be without the leadership of teachers? They take time out of their lives, hand us to get our jobs done, and put up with our excuses when they're not. While talking about her job as the producer for the Drama Club, Mrs. Mahoney offered, "What little time I have is filled with keeping after the kids to get props and sets done for the productions." At the end of everyone's hard work, teachers are always there to share the pride in a job well done!

—Erin Belmore

But I need it now! Mrs. Mahoney stresses to senior Laura Baker the importance of having the props at hand during rehearsal.

Oh what a day! Steven Masciarelli, Attendance Officer, is glad that his work is over for the day. He takes some time to gather his thoughts before heading home for the night.

Practice makes perfect. Junior Alicia Murtoff, junior Martinique Gaither, and senior Jillian Byun focus on hitting the right notes. The class sessions help students to learn their new musical selections.

We'll get it right yet! Sophomore Jeff Mahoney, and seniors Dana Dallis and Dustin Archie concentrate on the harmony in the song of the day. Their hard work is what makes the performance of the A Cappella Choir worth hearing.

Where's the Music?

A cap pel la adv. Mus. Without instrumental accompaniment (ITAL. : a as + capella)

....That is how the dictionary explains a new and exciting vocal class that meets B period every other day. However, to the 14 voices that actually make up this group it means much more. Students who are members of both Chorus and A Cappella say, that A Cappella members have to work twice as hard as Chorus members just to have the same quality. Equal quality isn't our goal, our goal is to sound as dynamic as possible, and we do. Junior Alicia Murtoff says, "It's a great experience." Mrs. Toohey makes our class "work and work" on the same song until we've got it right. Senior Laura Baker says that, "It's the best class for a serious vocalist to take." Sometimes the morale of the class is low because they're tired of working on the same songs, but they always seem to pull through. Everyone in this class gives Mrs. Toohey all they can give, and the rewards are the applause at the end of each show. That's when we know it's worth it.

The joy of cooking! Senior Joe Margagnoni frosts some cupcakes for eats after class with assistance from Mrs. Carpenter.

Often, when we think of creative people, we only think of those who can draw well. There are many others who are just as creative. In the practical arts department, there are a number of different courses that students can take. From woods shop and pottery, to cooking and architectural design, students have a variety of ways to demonstrate their talent. Senior Heather Bickford says, "I used to love working on pottery projects, I even took pottery as an independent study."

These are courses which stick in our minds, because not only are they fun, but they also teach us something. Students learn to appreciate all forms of art and to put their imaginations to good use. Senior Jen Bongiorno says, "I love to spend time working at my own pace in clothing and getting help from the teachers any time I need it. I really look forward to the fashion show at the end of the year, where I can show off all of my hard work." There is a great deal of pride in these "creative" students and they have found their own special ways to spend their free time.

—Jennifer Dolan

Putting on the pressure. Freshman Robert James seems to be really enjoying himself in woods shop. Hopefully he's being careful, the drill press is a dangerous piece of machinery.

Not Just Acting!

Have you ever thought that you would make a good actor or actress? If you have, Practical Theatre Arts is the class for you. During "A" period, in the math wing, Mrs. Mahoney is conducting a new type of course. Class work consists of studying world theatre history, putting on Greek and Roman plays, and working on the Drama Club productions during the year.

If you're an artistic person, then you might enjoy the construction and painting of the sets. When asked about what she does in class, senior Erin Belmore replied, "I love practicing acting techniques for auditions. The Greek plays that we put on were fun, too. I especially enjoyed making the masks."

Although this class sounds really easy and like a "blow off", there is a lot of hard work put into the curriculum. Students are tested on various periods of theatrical history and they also receive a participation grade. Sophomore Christine Kelley says, "This class isn't as easy as it sounds. We are tested all the time on theatre history." So, if you are interested in learning about theatre and in enhancing your acting skills, this is the course for you.

Hmm that's interesting! Juniors Faith Bernal and Megan Rand are caught up in the discussion of the moment during one of American Studies class' meetings.

A New Approach!

What's American Studies? It's a class that colorfully combines the joys of American Lit. with the excitement of U.S. History. Many in the class love it because they get to watch educational movies and discuss what life was like back in the early days of the U.S. For example, they watched the movie Dances with Wolves and discussed it in an historical and literary aspect. They then combined the two and had a big sandwich to go! Seriously, they did fit the two together and it helped us understand the topic. According to junior Ryan Farias, "American Studies is a worthwhile, educating and fulfilling course. It has broadened and expanded my knowledge," not only concerning American history, but also the magnificent American writers during this time and what inspired their beautiful works of art."

Team taught, the English section is handled by Mr. O'Connell, "Okie" to us, and the History by Mr. Johnson. When asked for his opinion Mr. O'Connell said, "American Studies provides the students with a unique perspective on the interrelationship of literature and history. It is an enjoyable learning experience for the teachers and students."

As classes go this one is not that bad, as a matter of fact it's better than a cold ice cream on a hot summer day.

—Mike Ginnetti & Rob Maybaum

This is a tough one! Juniors Nikki Gorman and Brian Langelier try their own methods of finding the answer to the question posed by Mr. Johnson during American Studies Class.

A teacher 'til the end! Mrs. Sandini is caught during one of her last classes before retiring. As always, she continues to strive to give her students the best that she has to offer.

They Made a Difference

There are certain faces we've missed this year. Do you remember their names—Mrs. Sandini, Mr. Winer, Mrs. Colley and, Miss Sullivan? You might recall seeing them in classes, in guidance, or just in the hallway. Mrs. Sandini left in October and was able to share some of her memories with us. For twenty-four years she taught Chemistry in the science department.

When reminiscing about funny stories, she came up with the following... Mrs. Richov, who by chance is our new Chemistry teacher, was once one of her students. During a lab once, they had a slight incident with sulfuric acid. Mr. Kamataris, who was also a student in the class, attempted to assist them with a chemical deluge shower but Mrs. Sandini didn't really like the idea. Her dress was singed and Mrs. Richov had to be taken to the hospital as a precaution but it was a memorable moment for all three.

While looking forward to her retirement, Mrs. Sandini had some parting thoughts to share for those students who may be thinking of a career in teaching. From her viewpoint, "Teaching is one of the noblest and most rewarding and satisfying careers." She also added that exposure to kids keeps you young and keeps you up-to-date.

Teachers like Mrs. Sandini will always be in our hearts and our minds. We wish her luck and know she'll stay young at heart!

Learning... the American Way

In the science wing there is a special classroom—students in this room are learning English as a Second Language or ESL. With the help of teachers Mrs. Glackemeyer and Mr. Georges, students are becoming fluent in the English language. When walking by the room, laughter can often be heard from within. Yes, learning can be fun.

Not only do these dedicated students receive help from their teachers, but they also can often be found working together and helping each other. Almost all subjects are taught in this class with the essentials for life in the United States in mind. Students are also invited to become involved in the annual International Foods Luncheon for the teachers. They can bake or serve along with the students from the foreign language courses.

Senior Flavia Macri describes ESL by saying, "I already knew English, but some kids knew nothing. They would have to look at pictures and the teachers would tell them what they were." This program has been helping foreign students acquaint themselves for years. Courses such as this make high school the time of our lives.

Oh my gosh! Sarah Sturges and Jen Tucker laugh as Junior Class Advisor Mr. Rigney appears to go nuts on the dance floor. It must have been his favorite song.

Don't get swept off your feet! Dancing the night away are Jeff Patruno, Carrie Querino, Pete Giorgi, Mark Boisvert, and Michelle Graham. They didn't waste any time showing off their moves.

So happy together! Holding each other close on the dance floor are Kim Chase and Lincoln Donohue. Prom night was one to remember for everyone.

We've fallen and we can't get up! Doing the "rock lobster," Kate DiRienzo, Kim Enright, and Christine Arruda hold on in the futile hope that they won't end up on the floor. It seems the rest of their classmates haven't been so lucky!

What an unforgettable evening! Prince Scott Reiland and Princess Kathy Alexander will never forget this honorable occasion. By tradition the couple danced to make the night complete.

Wonderful Tonight...

Finally, the night we have all been waiting for since the first day of high school—the Junior Prom! What were the preparations before the night began? The anticipation started when we got dismissed at 11:00, giving us time to get everything ready. Most girls went to the salon for manicures and make-up. Boys picked up their tuxedos and chose a corsage to compliment their dates' dresses. Jill Benson summed it up when she said, "Months of preparation finally seemed worth it and I was just happy I lived through it all."

The first big event of the evening for most students was being chauffeured in a long limousine to the Royal Plaza Hotel. Everyone strolled elegantly into the ballroom in their beautiful ballgowns and fancy tuxes. Photographers were there to capture the images of all the lovely couples.

As the evening wore on, the music inspired everyone to kick off their shoes and loosen their ties. Filled with romantic feelings, couples danced to the theme song "Wonderful Tonight."

"It was the best 18th birthday that anyone could ever have—thanks to Mr. Rigney," said Alissa Dreyfus. So as all Junior Proms should be, this was a night filled with precious memories that will last a lifetime.

—Jen Bongiorno & Meredith Trolla

And the crowd goes wild! Court members Rick Milliken, Kim Enright, and Jimmy Sullivan go crazy when the prom princess' name is called.

Friends til the end. Taking a break from dancing, Tricia Dunn, Becky Honer, Steph Adam and Jill Benson are all smiles as they relax.

Leaders of the Times

There are many different jobs that come with being elected as a class officer. Each demands a great amount of time and devotion from the individuals.

As senior class officers, it takes a lot of perseverance to get by. Another year and yet another Senior Skit and Toga Dance! But this year it's our turn to be the stars! A senior activity group needs to be organized to plan the Senior Semi-Formal, the anxiously awaited Senior Prom and All-Nighter, and our very own graduation.

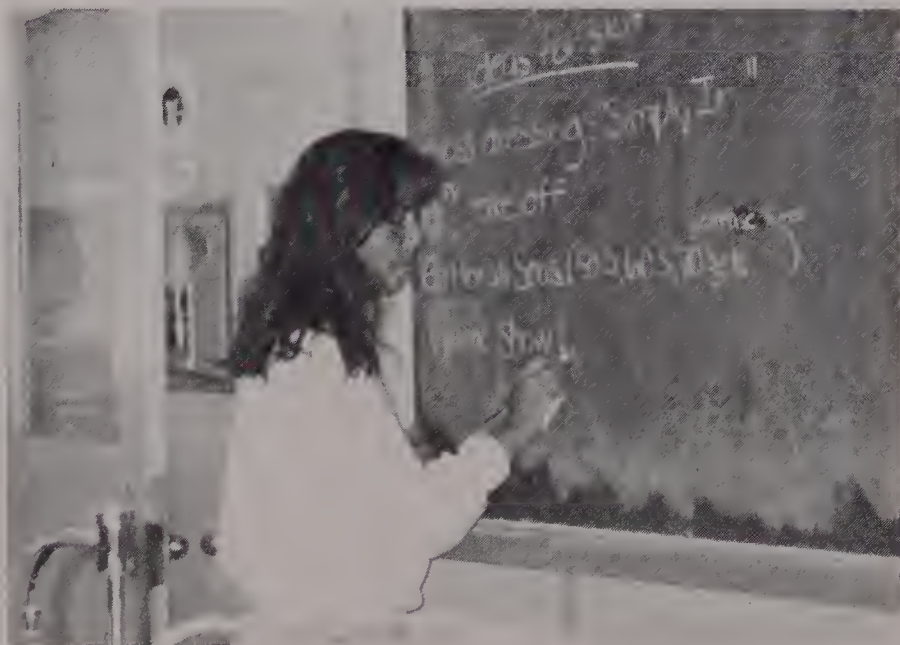

Although these are popular job-related duties that the class officers fulfill over the years, one that is often overlooked, but very important, is being a role model for our peers. We are chosen by our classmates to guide them through the year. It is our responsibility to set examples of pride, respect and discipline for our classmates. With the honor of being elected as a class officer, comes the promise of working with the advisor to make the year the best.

Without the assistance of Mrs. Bethke, our advisor, and Mr. Kamataris, our housemaster, this year would have never come about. They have always been here for us and we owe much of what we have become to their guidance. These dedicated people are not only our leaders and teachers, but they are also our friends.

—Christine Arruda

Are you sure? Senior class President Jimmy Sullivan looks doubtfully at his Treasurer, Jenn Clancy as they try to decide on a senior semi-formal theme.

I like this idea! Secretary Christine Arruda writes the different senior skit themes proposed by the Senior Activity Group on the board, so that they can pick a central theme.

We rule the school! Senior class officers, Jimmy Sullivan, Jennifer Clancy, and Sarah Sturges work hard at a Senior Activity Group meeting. Obviously, they've been making some heavy duty decisions.

Not the Average Students...

"Was it worth it?" That's what we've been asked by our faculty and friends this year. If you don't know us we're Ron Rezac and Mark Harrahy of the class of 1993, and we chose to give up most of our senior year to attend college classes at Worcester Polytechnic Institute. The program was challenging and we have learned to balance our schedules well. Along with our full load of courses at WPI, both of us needed to complete our gym requirement at MHS. Also we both still belonged to groups like Drama Club, Show Choir, Football, Academic Decathlon, and NHS at MHS.

This program is new to Massachusetts this year. Top science and math students from the Worcester area were chosen to attend WPI as college freshmen while still high school seniors. We received high school credits along with a full college transcript and it was all free! The only expenses we were responsible for were transportation and lunches.

The campus at WPI is beautiful and the laboratories have the top of the line electronic equipment. To be perfectly honest, the lectures can be boring, but then most classes often are. A good added incentive to the program is that we only had 18 hours of classes per week. Another interesting aspect has been a new sense of freedom we've found.

As a whole, the program has been informative and we've learned quite a bit about college life. We've enjoyed the experience and would recommend it to any perspective applicants for next year's program.

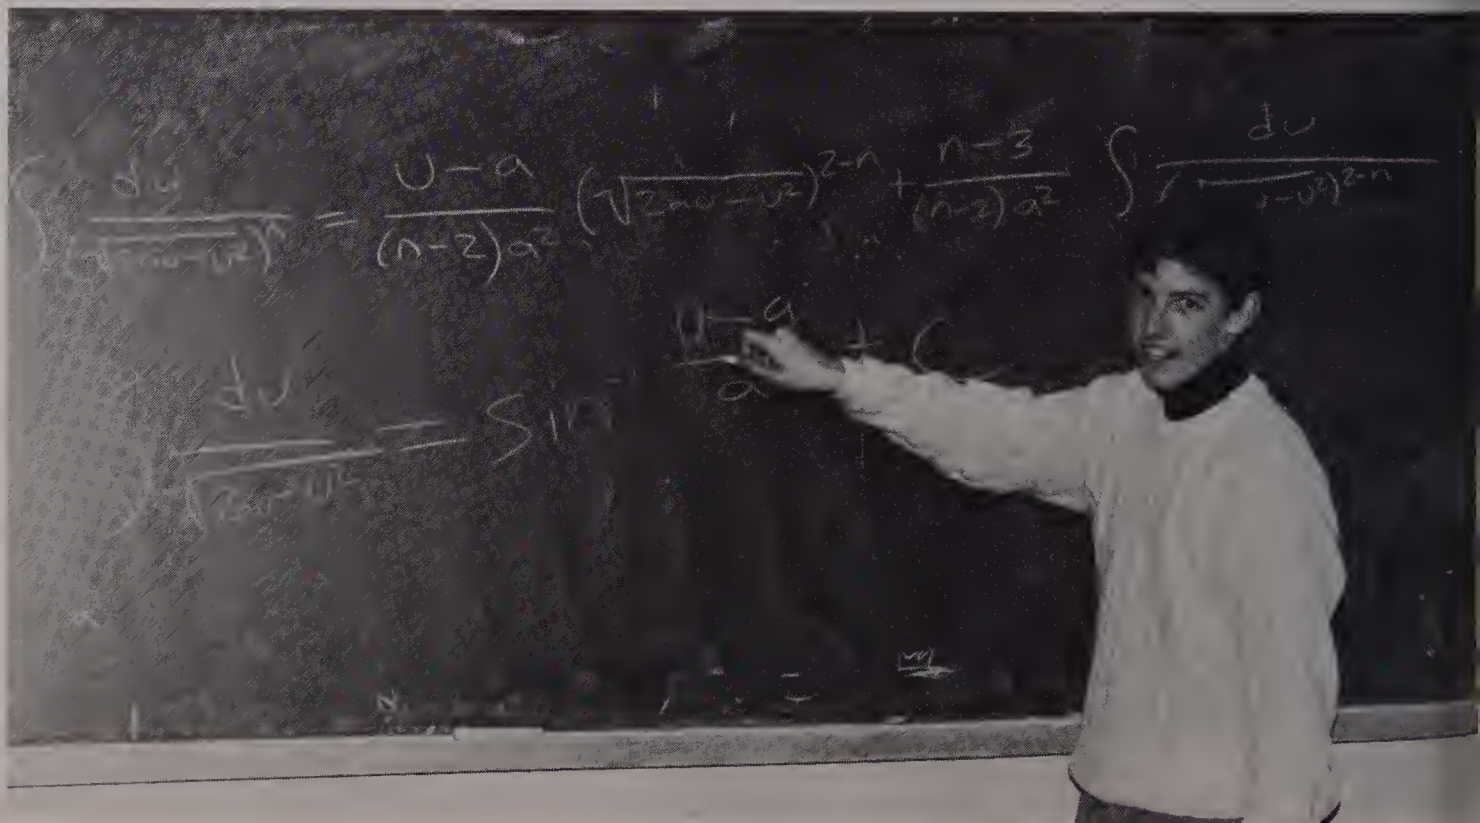

—Mark Harrahy & Ron Rezac

The campus is beautiful... The style of the buildings at WPI is old-fashioned, but gorgeous. What an inspiring campus to attend during your senior year of high school.

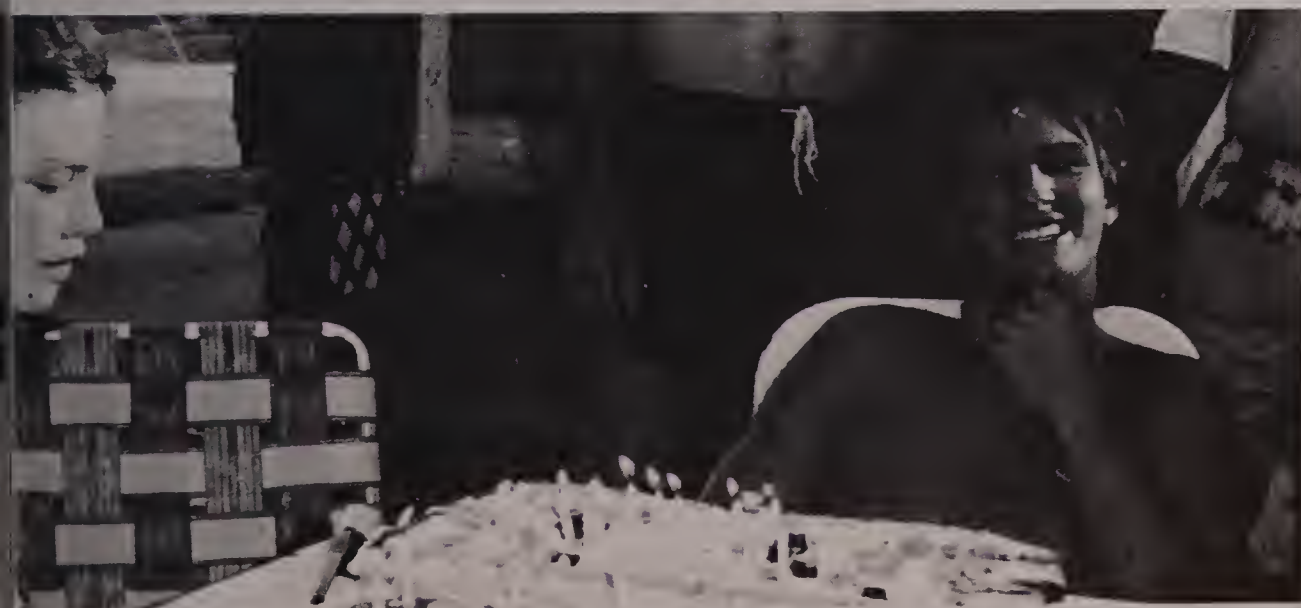

Ah relaxation!! At last, senior Ron Rezac can relax and put his feet up during class at WPI.

What a problem! Senior Mark Harrahy steps up in front of his physics class at WPI to explain a tricky problem.

Incredible genes! What a handsome bunch of siblings Keith, Kaitlyn, and Patrick MacNeil make. They even resemble each other.

The performance of their lives! After the Christmas concert, Show choir members, Pat MacNeil, Fred Angley, Hannah Elliot, Kris Ravenscroft, and Mark Harrah celebrate their talent.

Happy Birthday to you! At his surprise sixteenth birthday party, Pat prepares to blow out the candles. It is a well-known fact that afterwards he threw every girl at the party in the pool clothes and all.

Patrick MacNeil

Pat MacNeil was the one kid who fit in with every group. He was equally at ease at drama club meetings, in the weight room, or talking to his teachers after school. He personally defined the term "well rounded" student.

Pat was just about as involved as you can get in high school. In addition to competing in sports, he played his favorite instruments, the piano and guitar, and sang in the Show Choir. He was also a member of the Math and Drama Clubs. When he wasn't doing his own work, he was helping other people with theirs. They would return Pat's favors by helping him with things he didn't always pick up as easily.

Pat could often be termed the moody type. On a good day he entered school with a smile from ear to ear, but if you caught him on a bad day... look out world! You could usually tell his moods by his body language. He would run up and throw his arms around you when in a good mood, but if Pat walked by without even glancing your way, you knew to really keep your distance!

Pat always made the most of every day, that's what made him so special. He taught us to live our lives to their very fullest and in doing so, left us memories for a lifetime!

What a surprise! Pat says that we shouldn't have thrown a party for little-ole-him.

BEAT THE BOREDOM

Often a problem for students is how to deal with study halls. True, they are better than normal classes, but they are boring. Some students try to find fun ways to occupy themselves, others try to find ways to leave.

There are various ways to get out of a study hall. One is to get a pass from your favorite teacher and sit and talk with them. Another is to get a pass to the library, but be careful, this can be just as boring. One of the most popular ideas is to fake an illness and go to the nurse to sleep.

If you do not choose to leave, you can often find other things to do. One idea is to sneak in a Discman or Walkman and listen to tunes while ignoring the screams of the teacher on duty. You could also find some friends to play a card game with in the back of the room. Once again be forewarned, some teachers tend to explode at this activity. A simpler, more harmless way to keep occupied is to read a newspaper or magazine. Last but not least, you can always put down your head and sleep.

These are just a few ideas on how to deal with the everyday struggle of study halls. For survival, you must learn to beat the system. Junior Regan Blackett said, "I think studies should be four credit courses." Another junior, James Plante replied "Study teachers need to chill out." It appears that they have mixed opinions about studying. In the end most students really don't mind studies too much (especially when you can catch up on your sleep.)

WATCH YOUR STEP

Bucky got a boo boo! Even our school mascot was on crutches this year. It just goes to show that no one is exempt from injuries.

Have you ever noticed that in the course of a school year there seem to be a lot of people on crutches? Most people are on crutches because they have gotten hurt in an athletic game, but many others have been injured in the day-to-day activities of life.

Senior Jen Clancy, a girls' soccer player, was hurt in the last three minutes of the district finals. When asked about the injury, she replied, "I felt cheated out of the last few games of my high school career." Many athletes feel like they can't help the team when on crutches. Junior Jeff McGee, a center for the boys' basketball team was injured in a game against Fitchburg.

The people you see in the halls aren't always hurt in athletic games. Often students have been in automobile accidents or some are just uncoordinated-- as Senior Erica Silvestri put it, "I'm a major clutz. I always seem to be breaking something."

There are many negative aspects to being on crutches, such as sore arms, fatigue, and trying to find a friend to carry your books. But, as the common consensus tells us, the best thing about being on crutches is that you get to use the elevator whenever you want.

So, even if you get labeled a "gimp," maybe you should try using crutches at least once in high school. There are some good points, one of which is pity. It can definitely be used to your advantage. When you can pressure sympathy out of your friends, you can often get them to hold doors and carry your books for you.

Sophomore Christine Kelley says, "When I was on crutches I could get my friends to do anything I wanted them to do. It was great!" Though they seem to be a hindrance at first, being on crutches can often be a joyful experience. So, if you're looking for instant popularity, this may be the way to get it.

OFFICERS' ALLEY

Now that you're finally an upper classman, you feel superior right? So why not try out for class officer again!! Or for the first time? Juniors, like all students, need to have one thing, spirit. You have to be able to get the class going, and live the year to its best.

President Ryan Farias, vice-president Derek Robbins, secretary Jody Sharkey, and treasurer Leah Okimoto led the way to an exciting year. They had much preparation to do for their junior prom. Their advisor Mr. Rigney, helped them make sure that things went smoothly. When asked why he was an officer. Ryan Farias replied, "Basically, I like being in charge of things."

Overall the jobs of the officers are not easy, but they are enjoyable and exciting. If you think you'd enjoy planning activities for your class, then maybe you should consider running for a class office. Many of the students who are presently officers would say that being an officer is a great experience.

-Danielle Navarro

Not the Youngest Anymore !!!

You don't say? Sophomores Aimee Gauthier, Sara Dalamangas, and Laura Brodeur converse with junior Pam Milliken about the recent space shuttle launch.

Freshman year rushes by in a frenzy. All of a sudden, we are in a new school year, and in a new grade. We are no longer the youngest! What's the big deal? We're a year older, sophomores instead of freshmen, but nothing else has changed, right? Not so, according to Sean Corcoran. As a sophomore he, "Feels bigger and more mature than he did as a freshman." Okay, so maybe we do feel bigger and more mature than we did one year ago, but what does all this mean?

With not being the youngest anymore comes increased responsibilities, teachers and parents expect more from us, many sophomores have jobs, or are looking for one to cover our rising expenses. Over all we're under more stress.

But, we know what we're doing much better than we did as freshmen and according to sophomore Tohm Palaima, "We are more respected by the juniors and seniors, as well as the new freshmen." Altogether most sophomores agree that it is a welcome relief not to be the youngest anymore.

What's in a NAME?

Walking through the sophomore corridors, you hear a variety of unusual names being called. Names such as, Bean (John Green), Birdie (Roberta Pucillo), Doodles (Sara Domings), and Dweg (Greg Stein). What are these names? Secret code names for an enemy invasion? No, they are merely nicknames.

But, what are these nicknames? Why do we have them? Well, according to sophomore Hassa, "Nicknames sometimes bring out a personality." This may be, but it is often found that, very few people christened with long-lasting nicknames really remember, understand, or care exactly how their name came about.

Sometimes they come from your surname, such as Willie, obviously derived from Jeff Wilson's last name. But, how about Taco? What do tacos have to do with Chris Cavaco? Names such as his will forever be one of the great mysteries of this class.

You experienced being an officer freshmen year, and now the big question is would you like to do it again? Being an officer your sophomore year is much like the first, the only difference is that now you know what jobs need to be done. Once again, you spend time organizing fundraisers for the class to hold semi-formals and buy class t-shirts.

President Carole Dutchka, Vice-President Christen Dutchka, Treasurer Jason Sullivan, Secretary Elizabeth Benway, and Class Advisor Mr. Rocco work with the new freshmen to organize the semi-formal. This takes hours of preparation and lots of extra dedication.

The first two years of being an officer give you many advantages. You get the opportunity to prove to your classmates that you are capable of leading them effectively. This time around you can be more confident because you already know a lot of what being a class officer requires.

A NEW EXPERIENCE

When we first arrived here, we didn't really know what to expect. We didn't know if we'd be welcome or not, but we had to come. As freshman Lisa Sussman said, "It was scary at first." After the first week we began to realize that yes, we would be fine. Not because our old friends were here to help us, but because our teachers, new friends, and many others helped us to adjust to our new environment.

These new teachers were surprising. Instead of being mean and giving four hours of homework per night, they were nice and didn't even give half that amount. All of these new friends helped us adjust to high school and pushed us to get involved in sports and other activities.

The only bad thing about coming to the high school is that some of the friends that we made in the middle school are no longer here. When asked about this, freshman Jessica Taylor said, "I wish my boyfriend were here." Some of our old friends chose to attend different high schools, but even that isn't so bad, because we can always see them after school or on weekends. The only other negative comment that seemed to be on the minds of some freshmen was summed up by Chris Folino. He said, "It's a lot colder here than it is in the middle school."

Despite our fears, the new friends we have made help in making this new experience a good one. Life is full of things to experience and the more curious we are, the more we will like of what our lives have to offer us.

School Time Blues...

"I met your older brother!"...Those dreaded words you hate to hear.

For once you want to walk into a new classroom and not hear, "So how's your brother doing?" Not to worry - you won't always have to follow in your sibling's footsteps. Sometimes, having a brother or sister as a classmate can be a great advantage. For starters it can help keep you out of trouble because you know they will protect you. It's a great connection to the hottest parties in school and a good way to check out your cute high school classmates.

Of course, as a senior it's a duty to drag your brother/sister to and from school everyday. Sometimes this can become a pain when they start demanding rides home instead of asking politely.

When asked what it's like having an older brother in school, Greg Margagnoni replied, "It's a strange feeling. Because of my brother, Joe, I already know a lot of kids." For some siblings it's not really a strange feeling, but others may never get over seeing a familiar face in the same hallway.

OFFICERS' ALLEY

Freshmen class officers: President, Kaitlyn Enright, Vice-President, Jennifer Luftig, Advisor, Mr. Stephen Masciarelli, Secretary, Sandra Angelo, and Treasurer, Cristina Rigney.

What's it like to be a class officer? Coming from the middle school can be a little scary, and freshmen can feel very intimidated. Becoming a class officer can help surpass this fear. Officers have many responsibilities.

President Kaitlyn Enright, Vice-President Jennifer Luftig, Treasurer Cristina Rigney, and Secretary Sandra Angelo are the freshman officers. They work with the sophomores to organize their semi-formal. Mr. Masciarelli, the class advisor, also helps out by offering fundraising ideas.

Freshmen get involved in spirit week by decorating the hallways and offering "free hot chocolate" to freshmen classmates at football games. They also are involved in helping on clean-up day, November 15, 1992.

The jobs of the officers are not easy, but they're a lot of fun. They're not only helping out their class, but also making new friendships with faculty members and students.

—Danielle Navarro

Food! Special education students sit down to a wonderfully healthy lunch in the cafeteria. Maribel has her priorities straight though, she has decided to skip the lunch and fix her hair instead.

Taking Time Out...

In LifeSkills the students learn many different things to aid them after high school. Sally Jo, Archie, Guto, Nadine, Katie and Maribel work together. Like the other students in the building they learn in their own classroom as well as in rooms throughout the building. With the help of many of the other students in the building they learn all the skills they need. They work on basic math together with coins and number games.

Students also attend music, art, and gym classes. Ms. Ellsworth elaborates, "Every so often they go out into the community for different activities—one week we decorated the Christmas tree in the foyer of City Hall." Other field trips include going bowling, and going out for lunch our local fast food restaurants. With the help of many individuals who are willing to donate their free periods, these life skill students are learning about what type of people they want to become.

—Jim Sullivan & Jenn Dolan

Learning our numbers. Students Archie and Nadine are learning to count with tools and parts from practical courses.

Power! Representatives from various student councils were able to vote on many different policies at the convention held here. Senior Jen Clancy and Sophomore Carole Dutchka are in charge of the ballot box.

Decisions, decisions. Senior Jeff Patruno scours the ballot to find his candidates of choice in the several different races, and to decide on how to answer the four ballot referendums.

What do I do? Senior Jeff Patruno announces his name and address at Hildreth School as he prepares to vote for the first time in this year's election.

Does Your Vote Really Count?

Does your vote really count in the whole scheme of our democratic system? Many people will argue that no, it doesn't. Sophomore Robert Cummings says, "Because there are so many other people who are voting, your one vote is insignificant and far from a deciding factor in a national election." However, this is a viewpoint that four out of five students surveyed disagreed with. Senior Jeff Patruno says "I believe that everyone should exercise his right to vote. It is a great privilege that not enough people take advantage of. This election was my first chance to vote, and I was really excited to finally have a voice in my government."

There have been many cases in which an election was decided by a few votes, for example, the 1960 presidential election, in which John F. Kennedy narrowly defeated Richard Nixon. In these elections, every vote counted and if only a few people hadn't voted or had changed their candidate of choice, the election would have gone the other way. Considering that everyone over the age of eighteen has the right to vote, you should exercise the most important and inalienable right. Vote!

—Jeff Ryan

Eyeing the opponent—Sophomore Carole Dutchka gives strict instructions to junior Kelly Lafreniere as they watch Holy Name warmup.

Showing the spirit! Sporting their hand decorated t-shirts, varsity cheerleaders show they've got Panther spirit for our Homecoming rally.

World's biggest Field Hockey fan! Senior Kevin O'Sullivan, with freshman Kaitlyn Enright, is known for his attendance at their games.

Practice makes perfect... Time & TIME again

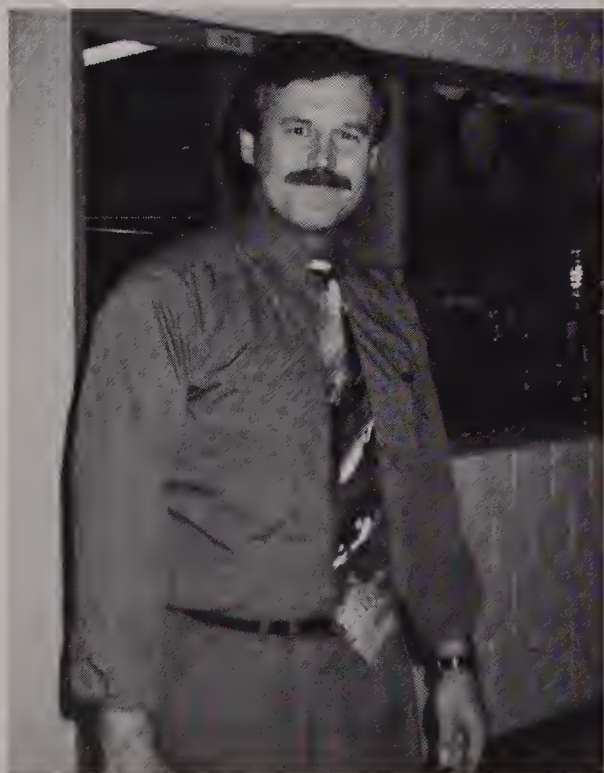

"I like to play sports at Marlborough because I like to be around my friends and challenge myself."

Craig Sullivan, senior

The time we spend as athletes at M.H.S. isn't wasted. We learn teamwork and leadership. But most of all, the determination to do our best—whether it's cheering on the home team or slugging the ball over the fence in the big game. It doesn't matter if we win or lose, because it is all in how we play the game.

"Which ball should I use?" An important decision to make at any game, senior Mike Richards checks the feel of the balls to find just the right one.

What a win! Junior Kathy Kiley and seniors Jen Berry, Sabrina Sequeira and Rachel Partington rejoice after a volleyball victory in our Field House. Moments like this always make the hours spent in practices worthwhile!

Ready for practice? Checking on the spring sports schedule, boys' baseball coach Bill Rigney heads out of the AD's office and back towards his human physiology classroom.

Athletic Pains

What are athletic pains? It's your star athlete injured and out for that all important game. It's losing to your rival and getting back on the field the very next day for practice.

Every team faces these difficulties during their season. The total commitment and hard work of every player helps to overcome each loss. Everyone pulls together to improve their team's record. "When we win games, we try to keep the momentum going. If we lose we try to bounce back and win the next game," says varsity volleyball player junior Kathy Kiley.

Being an athlete is not easy, especially when you're tired after a long hard day at school and you have a ton of homework. But before you can even tackle the schoolwork, you have the responsibility of being at your practice or game. To keep your place as a team player, you must stay healthy and keep up your grades, so right after your practice it's home for dinner, then a little homework, then sleep!

If you think you have a long day, think about your coaches. Coaching is just one of their many duties. Coaching includes making cuts, conducting practices, choosing starting players, and being responsible for your team's actions—both on and off the field.

Since most coaches are also teachers, they have the responsibility of being a teacher first. They have to make tests, grade papers, and stay after school to give extra help to students. Often they bring their work home with them and stay up late grading papers and tests.

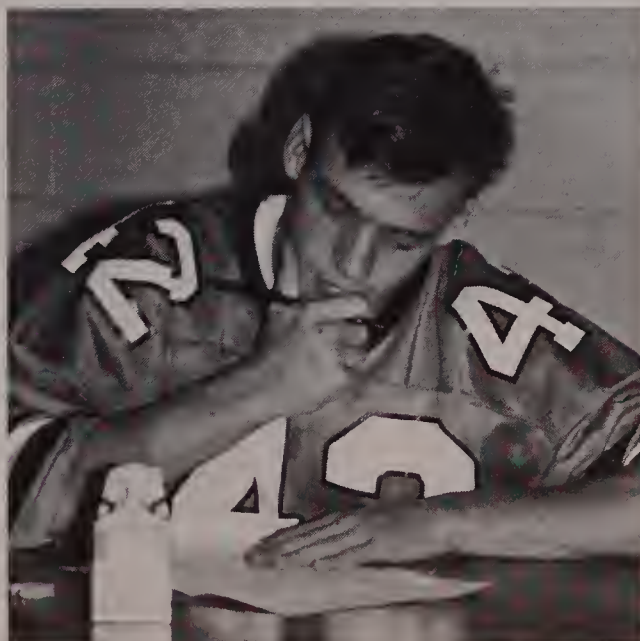

Coaching can effect their home lives dramatically because of the long hard days they put in. Their families have to deal with the bad moods after a heartbreaking loss or the good moods after a great win. They say they do not bring their moods home with them, but they can't help but second guess themselves for making a wrong call or decision.

We should respect our coaches when they stay after practice to give us individual help or extra help in a certain subject—whether it be going over that extra play one more time or giving extra help in U.S. History. Working with them, we can become our very best on the field as well as in the classroom. With everyone working together, teams can conquer the athletic "pains"!

—Rob Harvie and Cammy Hickey

What's this? Junior Kevin Burns and Coach John Ludgate look over some important material before a soccer game. Coaches and players often spend time before or after a practice or game reviewing strategies.

"I really appreciate the dedication of the coaches to make us the best we can be."

—Matt Lefevre, senior

Is the quiz today? In addition to sports practices and games, athletes must keep working at their classwork. Using some of his time in senior study, senior football player Scott Reiland works out some problems from his math class with Ms. Roy.

What a game? Juniors Joanne Sharon and Christine Skulley and senior Tracey Skulley lead the field hockey team off the field after a win.

Bring it on! During a practice, senior soccer goalie Kathy Alexander readies herself for an oncoming shot.

On the defense! Ready to knock the Milford Hawks off their feet, junior Dave Carr stares his opponent down.

A different kind of Commitment

The duties of managers and trainers may seem insignificant at times. They are not the people who get news coverage or special awards, but they are very important to their teams. These "jobs" can be time consuming—often managers and trainers must be present at practices as well as at games, no matter what the weather is! The trainers and managers have big responsibilities and they are extremely helpful to each and every player, as well as the coaches. Team managers are responsible for "the book"—the statistical record for each of us at each game. The trainers, led by Ms. Urban, help us to be ready to play by taping our weaknesses to prevent injuries and by treating our injuries.

All their incredible effort should be appreciated by everyone and most of us wouldn't know what to do without them. We know we can always count on them. Being managers or trainers are very time consuming jobs but being part of a team makes it worthwhile.

—Cammy Hickey and Erica McCabe

Did you get that one? Even at a football game on a foggy Friday night, seniors Stephanie Adam and Heather Ebert stand on the line to record the the team's statistics—touchdowns, yards gained, etc..

Let's win! The girls' soccer team gets fired up before their game against Holy Name.

Utterly thrilled! In excitement sophomore Emily Zebal gives a hug to a teammate for a well-deserved victory.

Refreshed! Senior soccer captain Rick Milliken takes a break at halftime before returning to the "pitch."

Another "W." Senior David Gardner wrestles his way to compete in the State Meet.

Tournament ime

What is it like to know that your team has made it to tournament play? Oh, yeah, it's just another game...Oh, yeah, we knew we could get there! Our sports programs are very successful and the desire to win is always there—during our regular season and especially during tournament games. And during tournament games the fans really show up!

Once a team has made it to the tournament season, its level of play is brought up to an even higher level—the teammates know the dedication and perseverance they demonstrated during the season must be maintained and multiplied! It is an honor to be involved in tournament play and our teams have shown that they have what it takes to get there. It is an experience that shows just how much hard work during the season can pay off, and in the end, you are left with many special memories.

We congratulate all our teams and their coaches for their hardwork, and the sportsmanship they exhibit. And we give a special thanks to those tournament teams and individuals—girls' and boys' soccer, volleyball, girls' and boys' basketball and our "matmen"—Dave Gardner, Scott Reiland, Matt Cooper, Rick Bramwell, and Craig Sullivan.

SPORTS Moments

Best Moment: After a particularly satisfying win, the boys basketball team went to Latin America for a pizza party.

Worst Moment: With a little too much extra energy, the girl's hoop team managed to destroy their favorite coach's house.

Best Moment: The boys' basketball team were league champions this season.

Best Moment: The hockey team beat Leominster with 3 seconds left in the game. Steve Bigusiak scored and got trampled by the whole team.

A little spark. With extreme intensity, sophomore Christen Dutchka and senior Carrie Pacific fight for the low post position as senior Kate DiRienzo and junior Kathy Kiley help to keep Oakmont from scoring.

Up for the rebound. Junior Ryan Farias forcefully controls the offensive and defensive boards during the Gardner game.

Celebrate good times! Seniors Kate DiRienzo, Marci Tyldesley, Jenn Clancy and sophomores Carole and Christen Dutchka are excited about their trip to State Semi-finals for the second year in a row.

Getting together! Before the game senior cheerleaders Christi Maiuri, Sarah Sturges, Tracey Skulley, Kathy Alexander, Nicole Duplessis and Kate Kelly prepare to get the crowd riled up.

Almost have it! Senior captain Chris Shea hustles to retrieve the ball before it goes out of bounds.

Let the game begin! Crowded around Coach Butler the hockey team listens attentively to his specific instructions for their game.

Must be chilly... Standing on the sidelines at football games can be cold and sometimes the cheerleaders must dress in layers.

Check please! Working at our St. Mary's Credit Union branch, senior Melissa Deldon does a deposit for Mrs. Cole.

Too much fun! Senior Rich Montgomery stocks the shelves at his after school job at Hudson's Big D.

Now watch me! In Clothing, Mrs. Collins shows freshman Heather McKiernan how to thread the bobbin on her sewing machine.

TIME is Money

"Selling these ads may be a lot of hard work, but it pays off in the end. These ads mean we pay less for our books!"

Patti McClard, senior

Flipping through our book, you've come to this section—doesn't quite fit in, right? Before passing over it, give us a chance to explain! It's not just pages of meaningless photos—ads represent contributions from our parents and community businesses who have generously spent money to support our book. Our spare time during last summer was spent visiting the businesses to sell these ads. Getting the senior parents involved is important, too. We asked them to "buy a section"...the baby ads !!! We are thankful to all the businesses and parents for their continued generosity.

Feed me! Senior Gerry Grassby explains to seniors Jeff Ryan, Myles Walton and Christina Agoritsas that breakfast is the most important meal of the day.

Dead or Alive...You Decide.

According to popular belief, and with a little help from our local tabloids, many people are still in disbelief that the "KING" is dead.

Most of us feel that it is an absolute joke. I guess no one takes Elvis Presley "The King of Rock 'N Roll" seriously any more.

- 41% Feel Elvis is actually dead
- 26% Think he's dead
- 33% Were undecided

Love 'em Or Leave 'em

Do you prefer long relationships or dating many people at once? Senior Nicole Duplessis comments, "As seniors I think that we have enough stress dealing with college and stuff. We don't have time for long relationships." Senior Aimee Blair says, "Long relationships give you the security of knowing someone is always there for you."

Prefer long relationships - 68%
Prefer dating many people - 32%

Chips For Cash

Where can you go paint pumpkins, have fun, and raise money at the same time? The annual Cow Chip Megabucks fund raiser sponsored by the Citizens Scholarship Foundation is the place. The cows are donated by Michael and Bonnie Bowen from the Hillside School Farm. After a grid is spray-painted on the upper field, Elsie, Ferdinand, and Gingerbelle do their "thing", the judges then decide who gets the winning chip. Last year the cow chips event raised them $4,000.

Where else does the money come from? Citizens Scholarship Foundation puts together other activities throughout the year to raise money for scholarships for any Marlborough citizen wishing to further his/her education. Last year, two-thirds of the $10,000 raised went to graduating MHS seniors. Last spring, CSF raised $6,000 from the annual phone-a-thon. Additionally, Middle School students partied to an evening of food, music, and dancing as they helped gain more money to go towards scholarships. This year, CSF hopes to raise double the amount that they raised last year. We'd like to thank CSF for all their efforts in our community!!

—Patti McClard

Found One! As the Bowen's cows chow down, the judges, councilor Gerald Spratt and Superintendent of Schools David Flynn, anxiously await to see who will claim the winning "chip"

Shingling, or the Movies?

Most girls, when asked for a date will reply that they are preoccupied, or sudden plans have developed and they have to break the date. Unfortunately, this leaves the guy with few alternatives for short notice plans. The majority of the girls interviewed preferred older men (90% of the 100 girls asked.) The minority consisted of girls who said that shingling their roofs was a priority (4%), and 6% requested a brief medical history and a plasma sample.

MARLBORO HOSPITAL...

Your Vital Community Resource For 100 Years!

Hospitals are a community resource. They are the center of many of life's transitions - the place we call first in times of serious illness or injury; the organization where many in the community find employment; and the focal point for numerous health care programs.

As with all resources, hospitals must be nurtured. No resource, without constant care and attention, will prosper.

At Marlborough Hospital, we are constantly investing in the organization for the community we serve. The goal this past year has been to enhance the value of Marlborough Hospital for the area - through technology as well as high quality personal and professional service - thereby fulfilling our mission to provide the best health care we can, every day.

What is Your Favorite Disney Movie?

When you think of your favorite Disney movie, do you think of what you watch when staying home on a boring Saturday night because you have to watch your little brother? When asked for favorite Disney movie senior Kim Chase responded, "Definitely Pinocchio, I love it when his nose grows." So when spending your Saturday nights at home take into consideration—someone else just may be watching your favorite Disney movie.

BEST EXCUSE

EASE! Having a Mom in school is not always an advantage. Senior Jim Sullivan begs his Mom not to tell Friday's date the truth about why he's changed his plans!

Guys, what do you do when you have a date planned, and suddenly, "Something better comes up?" You have to break the date !! Believe it or not, many guys use their mother one way or another as an excuse. It may be that she grounded them unexpectedly, or as senior Josh Lewis says "My mother's sick, and I have to stay home and take care of her." On the other hand, some guys think it's best to just tell the truth. Still others say whatever comes to their mind first, such as, "I was called into work early tomorrow, so I can't stay out late tonight," or "I have no money."

70% - "My Mom's fault"

20% - "Tell the truth"

10% - "Whatever comes out of my mom"

Christie,
You are "Miss Personality," always making us smile.
Thanks for memories, the joy, laughter, and tears. We wouldn't trade them for anything. Follow your dreams, we'll support you no matter what. You make a difference.

Christie Braga

Erica
You've shown us how you could lead your friends to the right beat.

May your future dreams lead you on the right path throughout life.

With love,

Colophon

Volume 16 of the Marlborough High School yearbook was printed by Jostens Printing and Publishing of State College, Pennsylvania. The cover was designed by Jostens graphic designer, Roxanne Ebert and produced by Rick Brooks. The theme (Doin' Time at M.H.S.) was conceived in the spring of '92 at a staff meeting. The contents were also planned and designed by the staff.

The production of 325 copies of the 204-page 1993 yearbook is printed on 80-lb., 8.5 x 11 inch gloss paper stock. The cover materials are high gloss 2-color litho with violet 267 and black 395 with silver foil 381 applied and laminated.

The basic body copy is 10pt Avant Garde with captions in 8pt Avant Garde with kickers bolded. The headlines vary in style and size according to the section design. Preparation for publication was completed using Jostens' Yeartech program which is based on Aldus Pagemaker version 4.2A utilizing Macintosh SE and Ilcx computers with LaserWriter II NTX printers.

The senior portraits, faculty group shots and special occasion candids were taken by Yearbook Associates. Underclassmen photos were taken by O'Connor School Photos. All candids were taken on 35mm film.

Special thanks to Karen Betts, our Jostens' Service Consultant, John Neister, our Jostens' Sales Rep, Roxanne Ebert and Rick Brooks, our Jostens' designers and Steve Forslund, our Yearbook Associates Rep.

196 And now...

Outta Here! After a full day of school, students take off for their buses and cars to make it home for the usual after school activities.

Bye Honey. Senior Jim Sullivan gives very distraught senior Erica McCabe a goodbye kiss after a hard day in the Mac Room.

... it seems like forever, but our TIME is done!

Well, once again, time has run out. It seems like only yesterday that we first walked into this building as freshmen, in awe at the imposing size. After four years in this friendly, familiar place, we have to move on into the vast, unknown, and often unfriendly, outside world. We've done our time, and our time's been served. The whole world is waiting for us outside these hallowed halls, and now that we have been prepared by the MHS experience, we should be easily able to handle any of life's little challenges. The school, which once seemed enormous and almost frightening, has become small, cozy, and friendly. The fact that the wide halls and large classrooms are seemingly too small and cramped are sure signs that we've outgrown the building, and high school in general. We must make way for a new batch of seniors to be kings of the hall. High school has created a part of our lives we'll never forget, but now we must move on, yet always keep the fond remembrances. Our span of high school has come and gone, and now we can begin the rest of our lives. We have had a blast—thanks to the faculty, the administration, and of course, each other. It's our turn to bask in the glow of senior year and graduation. But now we're out of time. So from the yearbook staff and our incredibly wonderful and zany advisors, Ms. Egan and Ms. Ellsworth, to everyone, good-bye, good luck, and have fun. Thanks for the memories! See Ya!

—Jeff Ryan
